WELCOME TO TONIGHT'S PERFORMANCE

Greetings Gala Patrons!

On behalf of everyone at Oglethorpe University and the Atlanta Pops Orchestra I'd like to welcome you to this gala celebration of the 70th Anniversary of the Atlanta Pops and Oglethorpe University's 100 Years on Peachtree. We are thrilled you are here to celebrate these milestones and hope you enjoy these two rich musical programs. We also hope you come back in the future for more great programs here in the Conant Performing Arts Center and around the Oglethorpe campus.

Best,
Lawrence M. Schall, J.D. , Ed.D.
President

ATLANTA POPS ORCHESTRA

In 1944 French immigrant Albert Coleman accepted the position of Musical Director for WSB Radio in Atlanta, Georgia and set about forming an orchestra that would include Atlanta's best musicians and be available for radio dates, public concerts and free performances for the benefit of young people and aspiring musicians. Albert established his first Atlanta Pops in 1945 and led the ensemble for 55 years.

In his long career Mr. Coleman also served as Music Director for Chet Atkins and Boots Randolph and performed with many of the major symphony orchestras throughout the United States and Europe. Most of the concerts in Atlanta were free to the local audiences and drew thousands of attendees. During his tenure, Albert was responsible for discovering and contributing to the careers of many young artists. His contributions won him the honor of membership in the Georgia Music Hall of Fame.

In 2002 former Atlanta Symphony Principal Trumpeter John Head became the Conductor and principal arranger for the Atlanta Pops, succeeding Albert Coleman. He conducted the orchestra in their 2004 tour of Taiwan, as well as concert performances throughout the southeast. In 2010 Maestro Head was succeeded by current Conductor and Musical Director Dr. Jason D. Altieri, an accomplished conductor of symphony, opera and pops programs.

OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY ON PEACHTREE

Re-chartered in 1913, the cornerstone to the new campus was laid at its present location on Peachtree Road in Atlanta in 1915. Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, who was the driving force behind the university's revival and who intended the new campus to be a "living memorial" to James Edward Oglethorpe, became the president for nearly three decades. During Jacobs' tenure, he launched several projects that brought national and international repute to Oglethorpe including finding the tomb of James and Elizabeth Oglethorpe in England; conferring honorary doctorates to recognize superior civic and scientific achievement to such notables as Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Amelia Earhart; and developing the Crypt of Civilization, the first modern time capsule which is located on the campus and is not to be opened until the year 8113 A.D.

In 1944, Oglethorpe University began a new era under noted attorney and educator Dr. Philip Weltner. With a group of faculty associates, Dr. Weltner initiated an exciting approach to undergraduate education called the "Oglethorpe Idea." It involved one of the earliest efforts to develop a core curriculum, with the twin aims to "make a life and to make a living." As Oglethorpe University continues to grow, academically and materially, it is ever mindful of its distinguished heritage and will still remain, in the affectionate words of poet and alumnus Sidney Lanier, "a college of the heart."

Oglethorpe University is listed on Georgia's Registry of Historic Places. The current President for the past decade is Larry Schall.

ARTIST BIOGRAPHIES

Cecil Welch - October 2

When he was a member of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, the Academy Award winning film composer, Henry Mancini heard Cecil Welch perform and offered him a position as his principal trumpeter and soloist. This association allowed Cecil to perform with most of the major symphonies all across America, Canada and abroad, including the London Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Chicago Symphony and the Tokyo Philharmonic. For 18 years he traveled the globe performing concerts in thousands of venues from the small towns of mid-America to the greatest concert halls the world has to offer. Cecil also performed with the Atlanta Pops Orchestra under the direction of Albert Coleman and toured with Chet Atkins and Johnny Mathis and played for President Jimmy Carter's 80th birthday celebration at the Carter Center in Atlanta and as a guest performer on the Jeff Foxworthy comedy TV show Blue Collar Comedy.

Michelle Malone - October 2

Atlanta native Michelle Malone is "equal parts rowdy guitar slinger and sweet songstress" (Guitar World). Her mastery of guitar, along with her trademark voice and songwriting skills, have earned her 3x Best Female vocalist, Best Acoustic Guitarist, Album of the year, and 2 grammy ballot appearances (Best Contemporary Blues 2006, Best Americana 2009). Her songs have appeared in film and TV, and have been recorded by Indigo Girls, among others. So far, over her 20+ career she has released 13 albums to date, and is currently on tour in support of her new album, Stronger Than You Think, a collection of empowering folk rock made to "fortify and inspire everyone who needs an extra boost of joy!" Malone's performances are "raucous and jubilant" (Rolling Stone) and can make the biggest venue feel cozy as a campfire and an intimate venue feel like the center of the universe.

Heaven Beatbox - October 2

Heaven Beatbox is a Crossover beatboxer, an actor, rapper, and an artist. He began beatboxing at the age of 14, vocally mimicking sounds that were inspired by hip-hop and alternative rock. He was the first ever beatboxer to be featured on the Universoul Circus Tour. Steven uses beatboxing as an artform. With it, he manipulates sound musically and rhythmically to create a story. A graduate from Georgia State University he earned his bachelors degree in Film with a minor in Performance Theater Acting. He is currently working on an album of his original beatboxing scores. He is also working on several projects in the acting world that you will not want to miss.

ARTIST BIOGRAPHIES

Arrested Development - October 2

Arrested Development (AD) are true trailblazers with hip-hop music. Since 1991 they've championed colorful sounds, while spreading a unique mixture of consciousness and musicality around the globe. AD's hit song "Mr. Wendal" brought much needed attention to the plight of the homeless and the group gave half of that singles royalties to the National coalition of the homeless. Their dance smash, "People Everyday" (Metamorphosis mix) addresses the tension between ignorance & consciousness, while paying homage to Sly & the Family Stone. MTV's Buzz Clip was the first major video outlet to play their music video, "Tennessee" which exposed them to the broader world. Spin Magazine, New York Times, LA Times among many others juggernauts featured AD on their covers. Later, the group would also become recipients of the NAACP image award (1993) plus a Soul Train music award. Despite their topics being an analysis and celebration of black reality in America, people of all backgrounds relate to Arrested Development's music. AD has won two Grammy awards (1993 - Best New Artist & Best Rap Single - Tennessee), Rolling Stone Magazine named them band of the year in 1992 and they were the first, and last, rap group (thus far), to win the Grammy's coveted Best New Artist award.

Joe Gransden - October 3

Renowned first for the hard bop of his trumpet, Joe Gransden's singing voice has been compared to that of Chet Baker and Frank Sinatra. Joe has been on the road as a sideman with the big bands of Tommy Dorsey and Glenn Miller. In addition to touring the country with his Big Band, Joe has made 3 appearances at the famed Blue Note in NYC. He also regularly plays events at the Tehema Golf Club in Carmel, CA for Clint Eastwood. In town you can catch Joe & His Big Band every 1st and 3rd Monday at Café 290. Joe has brought the sounds of the big band to many audiences throughout the country. His current CD Songs of Sinatra & Friends can now be heard on Sirius XM and Pandora. He also performs with Kenny Banks as a Jazz duo, with his quintet and with orchestra. Joe's CD's include Close to My Heart produced by Joe and Kenny G and his new CD Songs of Sinatra & Friends featuring Joe singing and playing with his 16 piece Big Band.

Montana Skies - October 3

A metaphor for musical freedom, Montana Skies (Jenn Adams, cello and Jonathan Adams, guitar) continues to follow their creative instincts far beyond traditional boundaries. In concert, these award winning musicians delve into music from Pink Floyd and Rush to Vivaldi, House of the Rising Sun, and their own originals that have been featured everywhere from NPR to the Travel Channel. Montana Skies seemingly non-stop tour schedule has taken them all across the US as well as to Canada, Asia, and Russia and their dedication to their musical vision has helped them build an enthusiastic grass-roots fan base along the way. They recently composed and recorded the score for the PBS documentary, Jay: A Rockefeller's Journey. In short, this ain't your granny's chamber music.

Levi Lowrey - October 3

Levi Lowrey reached the top of Country Music's charts by penning the Zac Brown Band #1 hit "Colder Weather". He graced the stages of the Ryman Auditorium, Red Rocks, and Madison Square Garden, toured internationally with Country music's premier acts, and released 2 stellar albums. "Much like his previous albums, I Confess I was a Fool (2011) and Levi Lowrey (2014), his new album, My Crazy Head (2015) is a piece of art that is felt as much as it is heard. His writing is both ahead of and behind the current state of country music. With the deepest respect to the roots of this genre, his lyrics stream the simplistically complicated storytelling of Samuel Clemens and the blue collar, everyman's poetry of Kris Kristofferson. Not a line wasted, not a detail overlooked."

Jason Altieri - Conductor

Dr. Jason Altieri is the current Music Director of the Atlanta Pops Orchestra and Associate Conductor for the Reno Philharmonic. Dr. Altieri is also a strong advocate for young musicians through his position as Director of Orchestras at the University of Nevada and with guest conducting engagements with youth orchestras all over the United States. Jason enjoys regular conducting engagements with the Hollywood Film Orchestra, an ensemble which he has led on several tours throughout the United States, China, and Japan since 2006. His extensive touring has seen him conducting in most of the major performance venues in the United States and Asia including The People's Hall in Beijing, China and Suntory Hall in Tokyo, Japan. In addition to his extensive touring and as a result of his tireless work with young musicians, Dr. Altieri was invited as a guest conductor for the Los Angeles Orchestra Festival held in Walt Disney Hall on June 24th, 2011. He also served as the orchestra director for the International Double Reed Society Conference in July of 2012 as well as guest conductor for the Santa Fe Symphony and the New Mexico Philharmonic.

The Ruby Reds Band - Lobby Entertainment

Ruby Reds Band (Rocky Ball, banjo, L.A. Tuten, acoustic bass, Marty Martin, trumpet & vocals) may be the oldest, continuously operating jazz band in Georgia. The band was formed in early 1966 to perform nightly at a banjo sing-along parlor called Ruby Reds Warehouse, at 58 Ellis Street in downtown Atlanta, GA, and has been playing throughout the Southeast ever since. For over 48+ years Ruby Reds Band have played for nearly every major corporate entity in the state. Along with thousands of private parties, land auctions, professional sports events, conventions of every kind, store openings, concerts, ribbon-cuttings, ice-cream socials, weddings, divorces, jazz funerals, country clubs, wake-up breakfasts, all-night street dances and they can't even count the parades. Ruby Reds Band currently plays weekly at Watershed on Peachtree's Sunday Cajun brunch where they recorded their newly released CD, Ruby Reds Band Live@Watershed.
